Miscellaneous Books

having chapters or sections devoted to specific railroads or specific subjects

List by Railroad Names p. 1 – 37

List by Subjects p. 38 – 46

Encyclopedia of Western Railroads, Volume 4, California p. 46 - 49

Some railroad books have been published that had individual chapters on specific railroads to present its history or to described some particular operation of the railroad. These books are seldom cross indexed by names of the railroads in library cataloging systems. The articles are often comparable to good magazine articles, which I indexed. Most are either good short line histories or descriptions of historical value as to how a larger railroad operated at the time of writing. I therefore decided to index these books which were available to me. Unfortunately there are many others which also should be done.

Where I do not show page numbers, see the index in the book

The page numbers may no include all the contents of the book and so you should also check the Index, if it has one, for briefer mentions,

The books included here are listed in the Book and Thesis Bibliography, but without information on their contents if not in the title.

The Farrington books have a series of articles, 5 to 20 or so pages, on operating subjects primarily of freight train and yard operations, and often in great detail as it pertains to a specific railroad. They therefore give good insight on the train operations.

The Sulzer books include several railroads in each chapter. Page numbers are for the entire chapter. Not all are short line railroads. I did not see the books and so some railroads described may be very sketchy.

Some books I do not know the page numbers and so only the code abbreviation. The index gives the initials of the book and page numbers of the article

These books may be difficult to find in libraries. The following railroad libraries will probably have most of them:

Barriger Library, University of St. Louis, St. Louis
California State RR Museum's library, Sacramen-to, DeGolyer Library, Southern Methodist Univ., Dallas,

Tx

Lake Forest University, Lake Forest, Il

New York Public Library, 42nd St & 5th Ave, N. Y.

Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania's library, Strasburg,

Pa.

- These books cover the 300+ logging raqilroads iPennsylvania

Part 2 List by Subjects (Book #4)

Note: The items in larger type and bold are from the following sources:

Bib. : Book and Thesis Bibliography (Book #3)

Ind: Railroad Periodicals Index (Book #2)

Guide: Guide to Railroad Historical Resources (Book #1)

Encyl: are the major items in the Encyclopedia of North American RR by Middleton. Lesser items are ENARR.

Note: The Book and Thesis Bibliography (Bib) under a single word category may include several of the categories listed separately here. This that instead of a single article it may have several or many books on the subject. It therefore should also ways be checked where a listing is given in the following.

Abandoned Railroads and Track 1970-1986 ASRG p. 229-235; Abandonment's in Pa. RRP p. 362;: Bib. p. 317; Index p. 642

Accidents –see Wrecks

Accounting: see Financiers and Finance and Economics in the Index and Office Procedures in the Bib. p. 336; Ency. p. 96-98.

Advertising: See Public Relations and Marketing; also Index p. 202.

Air brakes – see Brakes

Annual Reports: The locations are given in the Guide and for those prior to 1912 also in Bureau of Railway Economics Catalog. 1912, p. 300-331. Also for Harvard and the Bureau of Ry Economics (A.A.R.), their thousands of reports are listed in Appendix B.

Annual statistics (passengers, freight tonnage, train miles, revenues, expenses, bankruptcy-foreclosure dates, incorporation dates are in Poors Manuals. Also the different states produced annual public utility volumes, which are in large university libraries of the state and state libraries. Certain Poors are better than others. 1873 is good because of all the projected railroads, many never getting beyond that stage because of the business panic that year. 1883 was the first to have maps and the railroads organized by state. 1889 is good because of logging railroads inclusion. 1890-1912 has street/interurban railroads. Also see Bib. p. 382.

Architecture – see Stations

Art (Paintings) : Bib. P. 318 – 319; Ency. p. 145-149; Index p. 447

Associations – see Organizations

Atlases: see Maps

Bankruptcies, foreclosure, mortgages and deeds are in the county or state court houses (depending on the state)

Foreclosures may include equipment details. Receiverships and reorganizations. Index p. 828; Bib. p. 324-325, 336; Ency. p. 935-938

Biography Individuals Biographical collections Index p. 821-822; Guide, p. 18- 186. Bib. p. 319-324, 383; American Locomotives by John H. White, Jr., (locomotive builders and designers) p. 537-546; Ency (Encyclopedia of North American Railroads, ENARR,) 128 names scattered in the book.

Biography: All are in Encyclopedia of North American Railroads, ENARR unless otherwise indicated. Also see Ry. & Loco.

Personnel Records: Extremely few survive. They were not kept at company headquarters and so would have gone with the other archives to a university. They were kept at each division and ultimately were thrown out. A few have been saved by Railfan Clubs. The file usually includes the results of physicals, citations – both good and bad, promotion record, hiring information and retiring. These records were made on the cheapest possible paper and after 100 years are like comparable newspapers. The records have a value for genealogical societies for genealogy purposes, but no value for railroad operating records, etc.

Philippines: Luzon Military RR RRR p. 363-375,

Pictures: Besides rail hobby organizations, city, county and state historical societies will have some filed under railroads or the name of the railroad. However post cards of railroad stations are usually separate in post card collections. Another source is pictures in periodicals on the subject of the article. Negatives and therefore pictures for railroads, pre 1980, are given in the Guide.

Picture Identification: This is difficult. Contact the archivist at the major railroad museums. He may have had sufficient experience looking at pictures to recognize it. Old railfans may have the ability, such as myself. If the picture is at least 80 years and you are a member of the N.R.H.S., they may publish it. Most of their members having significant historical interest are also a member of the R&LHS. Until the 1890s locomotives were seldom distinct in appearance for their railroad. More likely the builder could be determined from its appearance. Beginning in the 1890s and definitely in the 20th century, recognition of the railway is by appearance and augmented by having railroad rosters to confirm an engine number. Diesels are identified by their paint scheme and builder. Unfortunately few railroads had station design used consistently such as the Lackawanna RR did in the 1880s. If the name or part of the name can be determined, the Official Guide index of stations will tell many railroads. Also there may be a locomotive or freight car in the picture. Book #0-, photographic identification for more information.

Encyclopedia of Western Railroads, Vol. 4 by Roberston, California Railroads

This book is organized and indeed differently from the other three. I decided to save considerable work by listing it separately. I have not seen it and so do not know how complete it is on any railroad. Some or many may be merely a sentence.
